

THE LOCAL SITUATION

In the Various Industrial Establishments Better.

THE FACTORIES ARE RESUMING

And the Prospects are Good for a Profitable Season—Some Minor Troubles in the Way of Immediate Work in Some of the Mills—Uncertainty as to the Potteries—The Glass Workers.

Gradually the industrial establishments about Wheeling are resuming operations. In most departments, the outlook is encouraging for a good season, though nobody predicts an immediate boom in any line.

There is an especially interesting situation in the glass trade. The Central works, or Factory O of the United States Glass Company, is operating on a furnace. At Factory H, or the Hobbs works, the repairs necessitated by the recent fire have been completed, and the factory is ready for operation. The North Wheeling Glass Company is rebuilding its furnace so as to greatly increase its facilities, and the work will not be finished for some time yet.

The flint glass factories are delayed in resuming in full by the dispute as to limiting the amount of ware to be made on a turn and the summer stop. In the line of goods on which the Central is already running the limit was removed a year ago, and by this change men who before made $10 to $18 a week can now make $24 to $25. At the same time the manufacturer is enabled to make more without an increase of fuel charges or other fixed expenses. On the 21st a conference will be held as to the points still in dispute. Until that time the factories cannot resume in full.

IRON AND STEEL

There is not a great deal of activity in iron and steel yet, though business is picking up. At the Top mill of the Wheeling Iron and Steel Company, the sheet mill continues in full operation. The blast furnace is still in progress of rebuilding, and will have a much increased capacity. The same company is about to start the old Benwood mill, while its steel plant adjoining is almost ready to be blown in. The Belmont blast furnace will also be ready for work in a short time, after having been relined and generally overhauled.

The LaBelle mill was ready to put its puddlers to work this week, but an unfortunate dispute between the puddlers and helpers about the division of wages may delay the start. With this dispute the company has no direct connection.

It is expected, if everything works right, that the new belt wet furnace at the Riverside tube works will go on today. This will add about seventy-five men to the good sized force already employed there. A new galvanizing pot of large capacity, is also about ready to be used there.

It is stated that the Etna, Standard and Laughlin mills will resume about the first of the month.

It is understood that the Bellaire steel works will resume on Wednesday again if anticipated orders come in. The management of the plant is endeavoring to give the workmen at least half time this month. Only orders for immediate delivery are being filled. After the first of the month it is expected that trade will be improved so that the works can run at full time. The new department of the plant will be started as soon as orders justify. This will give employment to 50 more workmen.

The Whitaker mill has been running in part only. At present it is only turning out enough stuff to fill orders. At the corrugating works matters present a brighter outlook than a short time ago, but the factory is not running to its full capacity.

OTHER INDUSTRIES

The potteries are all idle, and no definite information is accessible as to when they will resume. A small number of hands are working at the North Wheeling pottery, but these are all of the hundreds who gain a livelihood in this branch of industry who are now employed.

Most of the minor industries are prosperous as could be expected at this time of year. The canning factories suffered somewhat on account of the poor yield of fruit this year, but they substitute for their usual product some other line of goods. By this means all have managed to keep their usual summer force employed, and will come out all-in-all with about an average year's business.

The tobacco factories have taken several rests this summer, but will this week be running again with a full force, and putting out their customary large product.

The boiler factories report a very brisk repair business and plenty of orders. Business is quite as prosperous with them as usual at this season, and in the machine shops the same thing holds good.

The planing mills have for the most part been as busy as last year, with the exception of a few weeks when the financial stringency had its effect on their business, in common with nearly all others.

Allison's wire works, the Spears axle factory, the Warwood tool works and other works running on special lines have done an average season's business, and show a little growth, which is certainly gratifying in a year of general depression.

The Nail City lamp and stamping company has been run right along by the receivers, and has done a very comfortable business. It is hoped that as soon as the general unfavorable financial situation brightens the company will be able to resume the management of its own affairs, with a continuance of the prosperity which always attended it until a few weeks ago. The demand for its lanterns shows a steady increase.

BELLAIRES INDUSTRIES

The prospects are good for the rebuilding of the Lantern Globe Works, at Bellaire. It is said the furnace is in good condition, and with about $10,000 worth of repairs the plant can be put in working order.

The Bellaire Bottle Works will likely go on shortly after the first of the month. Trade is a little more promising, and as soon as the manufacturers and workmen in the glass trade come to terms the factory will be started. This is the first year since the erection of the bottle works that the industry has not resumed the first week in September.

The brick plant owned by J. A. Gallagher, in the Second ward, and operated by Osborne Houston, is making some of the finest red brick ever seen. The bricks are repressed. The plant is capable of turning out 20,000 bricks a day. Barnard's brick works is doing a fair business at present. The plant is par-haps the best in the Ohio Valley. Some splendid street paving bricks have been made.

Kidd's miners will receive some pay this week, the first for about six weeks. The company will arrange hereafter to pay one-half cash and one-half in groceries.

All the mines shut down recently on account of the tightness of money are opening operations again with as good a demand as they desire. By the end of this week it is thought they will be in operation.
